

Planets in Signs and Houses

Aquarius Ascendant

Suri likes freedom, fresh air, and a bit of time alone. Strongly individual, she will work hard at being a bit different. This will be obvious in the way that she dresses, how she expresses herself, and the friends that she chooses. It is no use trying to get this little one to mix with your choice of friends - she will have her own preferences, which are bound to be very different, just to make a point. This free-spirited child has a mind of her own, and can seem quite wilful, not to mention downright awkward at times.

Suri is likely to be argumentative and challenging with some maddening logic at times, and with a decidedly stubborn streak where she will not back down or bend. Until she is older (and may not even then!), she could have more than the odd temper tantrum, and will not care who hears what is said when she wants to make a point - her tolerance of superiors is minimal so you will have to appeal to her with some good sound logic of your own.

Although this sign is well-known for being friendly, with a love and a need for lots of playmates and soul-mates - she can manage very well on her own too. Suri will enjoy company, but her independent streak rejects the cloying responsibilities of total commitment. She must feel free to come and go as she pleases. Her "best friend" could change on a daily basis only to be replaced when a lame rabbit or a stray dog needs her more. Suri will like to be involved, but will not like to rely on anyone. Totally unselfish, whatever she has she will willingly share or even give away if she feels another's needs are greater.

She can seem cool and calculating where her feelings are concerned. Although this is one of the most humanitarian signs of the zodiac, she tends not to become emotionally involved. In fact, she does not truly understand her emotions all that well. What Suri will have is an intellectual viewpoint, sometimes abstract, but solid and definitely original. Aquarius rising often suggests an interest in science, mathematics or even political issues. Suri may also be interested in social problems, and, later in life, in social reform. Even as a youngster, she will be concerned about the system being fair. She will always defend the underdog. Her nature is spontaneous, often acting on intuition and impulse rather than to a set plan. Suri is apt to be rebellious and unpredictable, which can leave you feeling quite bewildered at times.

Your home environment should be stable and comfortable. But she may well feel uncomfortable with the idea of acquiring material possessions and may fail to see the point of this. Her interest will be in the "bigger" plan, so she will feel that others in the home are far better equipped to handle the mundane and minor issues than she will ever be. Take care she does not pass on her responsibilities to others. She will difficult not to indulge, and will want for nothing.

She will follow your lead in being well informed and intelligent. But since she may be advanced for her age, take care not to place too much pressure her to succeed and do well. You may put too much importance on avoiding failure or making certain grades.

Sun in Aries

Suri is a real "doer". Her natural enthusiasm and boundless energy will spur everyone else along; she will want to live and experience everything. She will have a strong competitive instinct along with a great stamina and would never consider coming second - the winner's podium is meant for her!

Suri is impatient and will tend to start many projects, losing interest long before completion. She gets frustrated in record time over her own abilities, or the inability or lack of pace of others too. No one will be in any doubt on how Suri feels. She says it as she sees it because there is no time for niceties. Unless you teach her otherwise, your little girl will be unable to wait for anyone.

Suri is actually quite temperamental but will seldom sulk or carry a bad moment for long. She is genuinely baffled when someone takes offence at her outburst and cannot understand why anyone else should react or take things personally. You will need to nurture some much-needed tact, diplomacy, sharing and caring, but do it gently. If you use force, your fiery youngster will rebel so try to stifle the instinct to yell back. Some time out - 10 minutes is more than enough - is fine, because Suri doesn't hold grudges but long enough for you to gather your wits.

Nonetheless, you really will need to teach her to listen to and respect other people. If she causes disruptive behaviour, encourage her to look at the cause and effect and accept where she went wrong and to consider an alternative for future reference. Suri will eventually learn to be more considerate and become easier to live with. No one will be more honest than this child. She hasn't got time to stop and think about lies or deception as she speaks off the cuff and from the heart and gives it to you straight. She has a lovely sense of fun and will love to share a joke or a prank with you and will probably laugh at your jokes even when she doesn't understand them so she can join in.

Competitive sport is a great way to use up some of her remarkable stamina. It will make the best use of her determination and also the sheer energy that Suri will have. It will also encourage her team spirit and discipline.

Having several planets in the signs before and after Aries (Pisces and/or Taurus), can add a lot of patience to your little girl.

Sun in the Second House

Suri craves personal security. She needs to be surrounded by comfortable and familiar objects and wants to own more toys, books, clothes, equipment etc than anyone else because it makes her feel good; her bedroom will literally be her comfort zone. However, she may want to own more things than she really needs and you will need to take care that she is not craving material security as a replacement for a sense of security within. She will feel more secure with plenty of daily cuddles and quality time. Once she knows how important she is to you and the family, her pleas for the latest fad may decrease somewhat - although pester power was probably written with your little girl in mind! Eventually she will have lovely taste and an acute eye for value, but in the meantime, her bedroom may look like an expensive garage sale.

Suri can find it difficult to share, so you will need to teach her about the spirit of generosity, so that she thinks about those who are genuinely in financial and social distress. If she is being particularly materialistic, a visit to a soup kitchen where the homeless people eat, or volunteer work with needy children might make cure this problem quite easily. Suri may be a bit possessive, but she is a very kind little girl and will just love to help and feel needed and with maturity, she will develop a strong set of values.

Planets in Aspect

Mercury square Mars (Strength: 5.97)

Suri is likely to have a bit of an overactive and energetic mind, as well as a tendency to over-react quite easily, which is often due to frustration. If something does not go right the first time, her fuse will blow. She will be argumentative, tending to jump to conclusions before thinking anything through. Her reactions are naturally hasty and rash so you will have to teach her the virtues of patience and verbal restraint. As well, you may want to encourage her to have some regular exercise or sport to burn off steam.

Suri is very sensitive to what others say and will tend to take everything personally. Her natural instinct is to attack rather than to take a passive stance. She must learn to cope with a difference of opinion now and again and to accept and enjoy a debate rather than treat every lively conversation like a war zone. With a little bit of guidance, Suri will be very good at debate. She actually has some strong and good ideas and people will enjoy listening to her as long as Suri realises she should not make others "wrong" for their ideas.

This aspect is known for headaches brought on by stress and anxiety. Suri must learn to recognise when to switch off and have a break, how to chill out and relax, and not to take everything so seriously.

Venus conjunct Uranus (Strength: 5.96)

Suri will be affectionate and enjoy being loved, but will also want to be free. This is a 'quick hugs' sort of child rather than a 'big cuddles' type.

Suri will have a magnetic personality that is hard to miss. She will be popular and social and her very elusiveness can add to her attractiveness. Suri loves to be in the crowd and will be an important member of any group, but she will still prefer to be free to come and go. She wants to be in control of her choice of friends and some of these friends can be unusual, to say the least! Suri will gravitate towards people who are innovative, stimulating, and basically, just 'different'. What is more, your little girl will be bored by anything less.

In many ways, her need for freedom and lack of commitment can be a problem later in life because it can become quite a selfish thing. She will have a great difficulty with commitment, because despite the fact that she loves company and will want to feel 'special' and loved, but her free spirit lurks and lures in its struggle to be free. It is not a question of giving in to temptations or of being sexually wayward, it is simply an independence thing.

Sun trine Pluto (Strength: 5.41)

Suri is good at communicating and find it easy to gain the confidence of those around her. She has extremely strong leadership qualities and radiates great warmth that is powerful; her charismatic air will be quite hypnotic.

Suri will enjoy doing new things, covering new ground, and trying anything, because it helps her understanding. She is keenly interested in knowing the mechanics of everything and will poke and prod until she is satisfied. She has little sense of fear so will be seen to take a few chances. Her quest for knowledge includes experiencing as much of life as is possible.

Her life may go through quite a few changes, but this will not bother her. Suri will want to grow intellectually and spiritually and will want to understand herself thoroughly. With maturity, she will have a sound knowledge of her potential.

This, actually, is the mark of the born healer. She feels protected and protects others with her gifts. She can influence the people around her in a very subtle way but Suri should learn to understand the ramifications of the sheer power she can have over others.

Neptune conjunct Ascendant (Strength: 4.81)

Suri is a very sensitive child who will spend a lot of time and energy throughout life getting in touch with herself. In childhood, she can struggle to come to terms with the fact that she feels very different from the rest of the world and may adopt a persona - or a series of personas - in an attempt to fit in. Unfortunately, she may be seen as deceptive for doing this, as people intuitively sense that her projected personality does not reflect herself.

Suri must learn to accept that she needs to look inward to find self-understanding, however, because she feels "different", her natural reaction will be to feel inferior and insignificant.

The deep sensitivity that is a part of Suri will extend to situations and the environment as well. When she matures and understand herself better, she will discover that she is quite psychic or at least highly intuitive.
